PERSONAL BACKGROUND

A military brat with a lifelong love of travel, Dr. Hutton has lived and studied around the world, gaining an appreciation for diverse communities and cultures. Her passion for service was shaped by decades of involvement with the Appalachia Service Project, where she has volunteered since her teenage years, developing hands-on skills in home repair and community development.

As a mother of three young adults, she understands the importance of faith, resilience, and adaptability. She has navigated the unique challenges and joys of raising a child with special needs and supporting a student-athlete, providing a strong foundation for their individual journeys.

Beyond her professional and family commitments, she is an avid traveler who enjoys exploring new places and building meaningful connections. She is also a lifelong dog lover and a former participant with Go Team Therapy Dogs, believing in the healing and companionship that animals can provide.
